Windrush school dispute continues

Journal staff report

EL CERRITO — The bitter dispute between a private elementary school and the neighbors who surround it may have eased a little this week but both sides say it will take a long time before relations are normal.

The City Council Monday night voted to establish a biyearly review of Windrush Elementary School on Elm Street after neighbors claimed that the school was repeatedly violating use conditions imposed last March.

The council has not yet set a date for the first review to include representatives from the school, the neighborhood and a City Council mediator.

Officials are hoping a review every two years will soothe the increasing hostility between some property owners and the student school.

"The problem is it all started with a bad note and it's not gotten a lot better," said Richard Mank, a lawyer and member of Windrush's board of directors. "I hope the communications between the school and the neighbors will loosen up a bit," said school Director Rebecca Grether. "We've tried to respond to everything they've asked for before."

City Councilmember Richard Mank, who will mediate the reviews, said a lack of communication is responsible for problems and "misunderstandings" between neighbors and school officials.

"I think it got out of hand and lasted too long," he said.

Neighbors say problems began as soon as the school moved from Kensington to Elm Street in August 1987. Because Windrush was replacing another school — a college preparatory — the city considered the use the same and did not notify surrounding property owners.

Neighbors say they were startled to discover that the new school would house not older students but children who would use some of the previously unused property as a playground.

"My life is disrupted from 10-10:30, 12-1, and usually 2:30-4 every day," Catherine B. Dusterdick wrote to the city. "I have tried to arrange my day so that I am not home in the mornings so the screaming does not bother

City to fix up aging centers

Journal staff report

EL CERRITO — After years of neglect, the city's aging community centers are slated for rehabilitation.

The City Council voted unanimously Monday to spend its share of the East Bay Regional Council District's bond measure passed last November on improving public facilities, many of which are not accessible to the handicapped.

The city is required to submit plans to the park district by May

Nearly $500,000 initially will go toward making bathrooms and entrances handicapped-accessible, landscaping to smooth the asphalt made uneven by growing tree roots and improving the heavily-used swimming pool.

John Witherell, director of Community Services, said budget cuts in past years have delayed renovation of the Community Center and several small neighborhood centers.

Most of the buildings were constructed in the mid-'60s after the city received money from a local park bond. Now those buildings are 20 to 25 years old, he said.

"I call it deferred maintenance. They're at a point where all of them have problems with structure. It takes an infusion of a major

Price dampens enthusiasm for community college move

Special to the Journal

A proposal to move the Vista college headquarters has been losing momentum since Peralta college district administrators discovered that the new site would cost more than expected.

Peralta administrators recently have been trying to decide whether to move the site of a former Berkeley school when their lease expires in August. Vista's present cramped office space is on Berkeley's Milvia Street near University Avenue.

Vista is an innovative college without walls that has served East Bay residents for the past 15 years. At present, the college has 5,500 students attending 300 classes in scattered North Oakland, Berkeley, Albany and Emeryville locations. The course catalog includes academic, vocational and hobby classes.

The Peralta trustees are at present considering two proposals for upgrading the Vista headquarters. One is to double its office space at the present spot. The other is to move nearby to the site formerly occupied by Presentation High School, a Catholic school no longer open.

The new site appears to be

Disagreements on library plans surface at joint meeting

By Ben Hellwarth

ALBANY — Although council and school board members all say they are in favor of expanding the city's overcrowded public library, it became clear on Tuesday night that the two groups of officials strongly disagree on how to proceed with the project.

At a joint meeting of the City Council and the school board, the elected officials who attended frequently noded in mutual agreement and praised one another about a number of items up for discussion, including disaster preparedness and teen recreation programs.

Then came the more touchy topic of planning for a new Albany library.

Council members were critical of school board efforts to help get the project moving; they especially pressed board members on the issue of changing the city's current lease on the library to help fund planned improvements.

"I would ask this board to renew the commitment it made two years ago to modernize the library," Councilmember Robert Nichols said, addressing the four school board members seated around him.

He added that the board should "take a leadership role" and come to a decision on how it will help obtain the necessary funds to build a new library.

Councilmember Henry Kruse agreed and said the city needs a "modest modification" in its lease with the school district on the current site of the library at Solano and Talbot avenues.

That lease, which runs through the middle of the next century, specifies that the city may only allow the school district property to be used as a library.

Kruse said that changing the lease would make it possible for the city to "bring in income to meet the cash flow need" for building a new library at the site of the former Albany Hospital building on Marin Avenue.

The city recently bought the approximately 32,000-square-foot site and is planning to rebuild it into a library and community center.

City officials are now considering a number of ways to finance the project. As Kruse suggested, renting out space for other uses on popular Solano Avenue where the library now stands would be one way to raise needed capital for a new, expanded library site.

School board members maintained they are doing all they can.

"The school board has always supported a community library; that has not changed," said board

Albany committee members named, director gets raise

ALBANY — Retired industrial engineer Joel Popper was appointed to the Senior Advisory Committee Monday night, but a second committee position remains unfilled.

Popper is president of the Albany Senior Center and is past president of the Albany Hill Association. He has lived in the city for 36 years.

Several other personnel changes were made at the meeting. Mayor Ed McManus and Vice Mayor Henry Kruse were nominated and appointed to the six-member San Pablo Advisory Committee.

The committee is expected to function for about six months and to act much like the Solano Avenue Advisory Committee, City Administrator Steven Salomon said.

An "at large" community representative still needs to be appointed to the commission. Applications are now being accepted and interviews for the position will be conducted at the council's April 24 meeting.

Two appointees from the Parks and Recreation Commission and one member from both the Arts Commission and the Planning and Zoning Commission also sit on the committee.

In a job reclassification, the position of Senior Center Director was renamed Director of Senior Services. The position was changed because the former job description was outdated and didn't accurately compensate Director Jean Allen for her added responsibilities, a staff report said.

After studying similar positions in nearby towns, city officials found Allen's salary was 35 percent lower than her peers. The top pay step under the former classification was $1,752 a month, $929 lower than the average salary for the cities of El Cerrito, Emeryville, Martinez and San Pablo.

Grigsby lawsuit alleges police tried to kill him

A transient who claims a former El Cerrito police officer attempted to murder him sued the officer, the city, Contra Costa County and four other individuals in federal court in San Francisco Tuesday.

Leroy Grigsby, 41, charges in the lawsuit that Scott Schasker, 22, who was then an on-duty officer, kidnapped him and drove him to Point Isabel in Richmond last Aug. 3 and then beat him and forced him to walk into the bay while another officer, Martin Knight, looked on.

The civil lawsuit seeks money compensation in an amount to be determined at a not-yet-scheduled trial.

Schasker currently is on trial in Contra Costa County Superior Court on criminal charges of unnecessary assault by an officer, false imprisonment and kidnapping.

He and Knight have resigned from the police force.

The federal lawsuit is based on

Breakdown blues

MY CAR DIED on the freeway Easter Sunday. I'll never be the same. I became one of them. A sap, a sad sack, a jerk — a loser standing on the shoulder of the road with my hood up. I was the one everybody drives past, shudders and says: "I'd sure hate to be stuck here."

The switch to sardom took only seconds. One minute I was driving along, happily stuffed to capacity with ham and candy. The next minute, the little red battery light went on and my car wheezed out its last breath.

I pulled over on the onramp from 101 to 880. I turned the key in the ignition hoping that a rough clutch move had killed the engine. The motor whined.

I began to panic. I had to get to a phone but there appeared no way to get from the freeway to the buildings below. Cars whizzed by. I started getting mad. You stupid, stupid car! I swore as I slammed down the hood. My boxy little American-made auto sat there like a bratty kid with his arms crossed.

One speeding driver honked as if to tell me I shouldn't park on the freeway. We exchanged glances as he passed. What do you think I'm doing out here, STRETCHING MY LEGS?

I TRIED LOOKING distressed. I pulled my hair and looked around frantically. I hoped the act would catch someone's attention who could drive me to a phone. It didn't.

I would have to walk the 5, 10, 15 miles to the nearest phone. To the right was a steep embankment, at its bottom a cyclone fence. I couldn't go that way.

To the left, two lanes of cars were speeding northbound and another two lanes southbound. I couldn't cross the freeway.

Straight ahead was a narrow overpass leading to an offramp. It had two lanes for cars and no lanes for pedestrians. Instead, it was bordered by a 2-foot-high concrete fence. On the other side of the fence was a narrow span of walkway.

I decided not to walk on the narrow concrete because if I fell I would die. I would take my chances on the freeway lane. I started sprinting across, waving my blue jacket with my left hand.

Oh, God, this is really scary, I repeated as I jogged with my purse bouncing clumsily against my hip, waving my blue flag at the cars streaking by.

Once over, I slid down the steep grass-covered embankment.

On flat ground there were industrial buildings and garages, each one closed up for Easter Sunday.

I pictured myself walking for miles in this dark — probably dangerous — neighborhood before I found a phone.

Up ahead was a building with a light on. I headed for it. It was a fire station. A fire station. Where people are nice and always at home.

I RANG THE BELL. A short Hispanic man with baggy pants and red suspenders answered. "Uh hi, my car broke down on the freeway and I was wondering if I could just use your phone?"

He saw the panic in my face as I headed toward the phone behind the front counter. "Are you okay?" he asked, genuinely concerned. No I'm not, I wanted to cry. I'm in the middle of nowhere, I have to get back to Oakland tonight, I don't have any money, I just put $900 into this stupid car and now it's broken again. I don't know if I can get a tow truck on Easter Sunday....

"Yes," I said in my best professional voice. "I just hope I can find a tow truck."

He leaned on the counter while I looked through the Yellow Pages. "Here's one that's close," he said. I called. It would be $120 to take the car to Oakland and 45 minutes before they could come. "Here's another one and they're probably cheaper," he said. It would be $100 and 45 minutes before they could come. I chose them.

I settled in for a wait. The firemen kept me company. We talked about firefighting, the A's, junky cars. The smell of their dinner wafted into the office.

By Shirleen Holt

"Are you hungry?" they asked. "No, you go ahead."

An hour and a half later, a beat-up tow truck arrived. I said a quick goodbye to the guys and climbed into the cab.

I looked at the driver and my panic returned. Looking like a convict from Scared Straight, he had long, slicked back hair and a sparse beard.

Tattoos peeked out from under the fringe of his sleeveless denim jacket. "Where's your car?" he said with a smile. He was missing some teeth.

"On the freeway," I chirped. He was going to drive me all the way to Oakland.

"Well, we gotta get some gas first, okay?" While he was at the gas pumps, I surveyed the inside of the truck. It looked okay. Some Marlboros, a mileage log, a small credit card machine. No knives, guns, or rope.

WE FOUND MY abandoned car, hooked it up and set off. "How long have you been a tow truck driver?" I asked.

"Three months," he said.

Only three months. This is probably his first job since he got out of prison.

"Before that I was a roofer."

I relaxed. The truck bounced along, making conversation difficult. Everywhere we talked it sounded like someone was thumping our backs.

As we got closer to Oakland, the traffic thickened, creating rivers of headlights on the freeway. The driver nervously lit another Marlboro.

"This is kind of a big city, huh?"

It took me a beat, then I realized. The guy I pictured carving his initials into fellow inmates was scared of driving in a city.

"Oh, it's nothing like San Francisco," I said, trying to reassure him. "Everything's really easy to find and there are no hills. At night you could fire a cannon through downtown it's so dead." I don't know why I used that metaphor, but someone said it to me once and it seemed appropriate.

We found the garage where I was going to dump my car. I asked the driver to take me the 26 blocks to my home.

THREE BLOCKS FROM the garage, we heard a loud thud and the sound of metal scraping asphalt. The driver, a look of fear crossing his face, pulled over.

He disappeared under the truck and came back with a diagnosis: A bar had come loose from the truck's underside.

The truck was broken.

So for the second time that night I was a sap. Except this time I wasn't alone. I had a fellow sap. A gap-toothed, greased-back guy who was as scared as me.

"Well," I said, as the cars passed us on Broadway. "Think we should call a tow truck?"

Meters an important asset on Solano Avenue

Editor:

The Albany Chamber of Commerce has been concerned with Albany's need for more parking for many years. Ample opportunities to park helps every business to retain its customers. With vehicle traffic expanding, the City of Albany hired a parking consultant in 1971 who made a study of Albany's parking problems and recommended the acquisition of offstreet parking lots.

The city did not have the funds to buy land for parking and 18 years later the problem has been magnified due to Solano Avenue's popularity.

In 1986 the Chamber decided that unless some action was taken to increase parking, that customers would tire of parking far from their destination or going around the block several times.

Accordingly the Chamber's parking committee was reactivated. The first move was to pay for a parking survey by the University of California Institute of Traffic Studies, which made a complete survey of used and vacant parking spaces on Solano Avenue for a full month in November 1986.

That study graphically showed the lack of parking spaces. It also commented on the difficulty of enforcement of hourly limits and illegal parking because of the lack of spaces. As a result, after months of meetings, the Chamber Board of Directors approved the plan which was presented to the Albany City Council on June 29, 1987. The detailed plan can be reviewed at City Hall.

The plan was comprehensive and recommended short-term as well as long-range solutions. However, it was felt that a band-aid approach would help for only a few years and that positive steps must be taken if Solano Avenue and Albany were to continue to prosper.

The Chamber requested the council to change the parallel spaces on Solano Avenue to diagonal. In addition, it asked that parking be allowed on both sides of the Key Route corridor.

The Traffic and Safety Commission approved the idea and the City Council agreed to appropriate the funds to do the re-striping.

In so doing, 45 new parking spaces on Solano Avenue and an additional 45 spaces on Key Route Boulevard were added. While 90 spaces have helped a great deal, the long-range plan is to take action now to solve the parking problem for future generations.

Past consultants have suggested a bond issue to build one large parking lot near Solano and San Pablo avenues. This approach was rejected for two reasons. First, the chamber did not want any massive asphalt lots which would change the present home town atmosphere of Albany.

Second, one parking lot, regardless of how large, could not benefit everyone on Solano Avenue but only the businesses near the lot. There should be parking up and down Solano Avenue.

The chamber came up with a unique solution.

The installation of parking meters would provide a constant source of revenue which would be pledged by the City of Albany to a parking fund. The initial cost of the meters, plus enforcement and maintenance, would be deducted from the income and the remaining balance would go to a separate parking fund.

These funds could only be used to improve parking on Solano Avenue. This could help the acquisition of commercially zoned land near Solano Avenue where small parking lots are servicing that area could be placed.

These small neighborhood parking lots would be convenient, nicely landscaped and would retain the neighborhood flavor and ambience of our beautiful street.

As commercial land adjoining or on Solano goes on the market, the council could use the pledged parking funds to buy it, pave and landscape it and install meters to help repay the fund.

Over a period of years a great many new spaces could be added to alleviate the parking congestion there is now. In addition, the city could use the rent easements to access the landlocked lots behind many existing buildings, using parking funds. This could allow employee parking in their own building if desired by the building owner.

This would remove many cars from Solano Avenue and make room for citizens who shop on Solano Avenue. It could also help the overload on adjacent side streets.

The city's public works staff studied this for almost a year and came up with an analysis based on conservative estimates of the parking meters and moderate fees. The installation of the meters would be paid in the first year. In the second year it is projected that there would be net revenues of approximately $218,800 after paying enforcement, maintenance and administrative overhead.

To the best of its knowledge no other city has pledged its parking funds to provide more space for those who are paying into the fund and instead use parking funds to implement the general funds.

The Chamber of Commerce commends the council for its foresight in adopting this plan, thanks them and Ron Leffer, director of Public Works, who made the economic survey and recommended the project.

The chamber urges the support of the Solano Avenue business community in this new undertaking for the overall good of the city to assure its economic future.

As a result of neighborhood lobbying, the City Council limited playground use to daylight hours and tagged an additional 27 conditions onto the school's use permit in March 1988.

Neighbors said since then, many of the conditions have been violated. They said students would misbehave, leave the grounds during class time, or play on the playground before 8:30 a.m. or after the 4:30 p.m. curfew.

According to Grether, however, the school "strictly enforce(ed) these conditions and restrictions."

School officials and the city both suggested that neighbors who saw students violate Windrush's permit call the school office.

"If we tried to call the school and make a complaint, it was normally met with hostility," Dusterdick said. "(The situation) was getting so bad I got threatening phone calls from parents."

Grether said Windrush has made every attempt to communicate with the neighbors and that she received only five complaints in the last year.

When she saw a list of "infractions" neighbors logged since March 1987, "I was totally shocked."

"We have a wonderful school here. We have a terrific academic program. We have really good kids and when someone says they're not, it's really upsetting to us."

E.C. woman still faces one charge

A defense attorney for an El Cerrito woman says prosecutors are pursuing charging her with felony child endangerment only to keep "charges hanging over her head."

Katherine Hubert, 30, was charged in January with 58 felony counts for allegedly prostituting two of her children, but those charges were dropped last week after the children said they had fabricated their allegations.

Hubert's attorney, Oscar Bowbrow, told Bay Municipal Court Judge Bessie Driebelbis last week the lone remaining charge of felony child endangerment is vague and lacks "specific particularity."

BART manager tried for an alleged bribe

Bay City News

A defense lawyer for a former BART maintenance manager accused of bribe-taking told a federal jury in San Francisco last week that his client was an innocent man whose "only purpose was to do the best job for the district."

March 28 was the first day of trial for Helder Simas, 46, of Concord, who was fired last fall as manager of power and electrical maintenance support for the transit district.

Simas is the only one of seven former BART managers and contractors named in an ongoing corruption investigation to go to trial thus far.

Four others have pleaded guilty, one has been judged incompetent to stand trial and a sixth has not yet been tried.

Simas is accused of conspiring to solicit a bribe, accepting a

$2,000 bribe from an undercover FBI agent who allegedly bought him a piece of computer equipment and other items for his personal use in 1987 and 1988.

Defense attorney Walter Cannady told the jury in the court of U.S. District Judge Thelton Henderson that Simas "may have taken shortcuts, but none of them involved theft or graft or personal gain."

Cannady said Simas came to the United States from the Azores and began working for BART in the early 1970s, working his way up from a low-level electrician to a manager.

The attorney conceded without elaborating that in the course of discussions about an escalator cleaning contract, Simas "was given" $2,000.

Cannady maintained that on the next day, Jan. 15, 1987, Simas

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors voted to create a Tree Task Force to advise the board on how the county can accomplish "urban reforestation."

The board voted unanimously last week to support a motion by Supervisor Nancy Fahden to set up a small group including a biologist, a developer and a planning commissioner who would study a plan to protect the county's trees and plant more.

Fahden proposed that the task force draw up an ordinance that would require builders to include trees in all future developments, and that trees on another "mitigation" site as a condition for giving permission to build.

Fahden cited the "worldwide concern with global warming, and the fact that trees absorb carbon dioxide as they grow, reducing levels of gas in the atmosphere" in her arguments in favor of the task force.

County wants state to reimburse for aid

The chairman of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors said last week that the board plans to sue the state to recover $5 million in compensation the county believes it is owed for treating crime victims.

Following a closed board session, Don Perata said, "For the last three years the state has summarily denied reimbursement" to county hospitals that participate in the state's crime victims assistance program.

Perata said the state has an obligation to pay for providing medical service to crime victims and called the threatened lawsuit a last recourse.

Perata said he is particularly upset that the state is proposing to use a surplus in the crime victims assistance program to fund county detention facilities that house offenders.

Trial for freeway robber, shooter

Final arguments in the trial of a Richmond man charged in the shooting death of a 4-year-old boy last June are over and last week a jury began deliberations on whether to find the defendant guilty of first-degree murder.

Prosecutor Kevin D. Jones of the Marin District Attorney's Office told the jury March 29 the actions of the defendant, Irvin Terrell Tatum, directly led to the murder of Deante Rhodes Lynn last June 10 near the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge.

Jones says Tatum was driving when he and co-defendant Terrence Harper chased the Mercedes-Benz containing the boy across the bridge and eventually forced it off the road.

Though the fatal shot apparently was fired by the 17-year-old Harper, Jones says it was Tatum's desire to rob the car's occupants that precipitated the shooting.

The case of Harper is still under review by the state appellate court to determine whether he should be tried as a juvenile or an adult.

The blossoming of Emeryville

If you haven't been there in the last six months, if you look at it as the small city at our end of the bridge that's devoted primarily to industry and technology, if you think you have no reason to go there — you're in for a surprise.

Emeryville has come into its own. It now boasts EmeryBay, a major retail, residential, office and entertainment complex that opened last October. The development is located at Powell Street just off Interstate 80.

With its central location, EmeryBay now draws residents and tourists from all over the East Bay who go there to live, shop, eat and listen to jazz. A soon-to-come added attraction is a movie theater.

for amount of money to get these things all done."

Handicapped conversion is a priority because state law requires that cities rehabilitate their public restrooms, Witherell said. "Now we have these funds for the first time to convert all of them," he said.

Proposed projects include:

- More than $120,000 for repairs and restroom conversion at Castro neighborhood center, Arlington center, Canyon Trail, Tassajara center, Casa Cerrito and Cerrito Vista.
- More than $100,000 to improve the large Community Center on Moeser Lane which serves about 150 people a day.

Plans include installing a long-awaited glass door partition between the social hall and entryway, and landscaping parking lots.

Witherell said the city was sued "at least three times" in the last five years when citizens tripped over hazards created by untended tree roots or broken asphalt.

- The Swim Center adjacent to the Community Center is slated for $68,000 worth of work. The city proposes, in part, to resurface and retille the pool and replace outdoor lighting.
- The Castro neighborhood center on Norvell Street will get an expanded school-age child care center funded partially through park bonds and partially through state grants. When the $120,000 project is complete, the center will be able to add 20 children to the 28 currently enrolled.

Improvements for the first phase are expected to be completed in 1991. The second phase, which will pump an additional $165,703 into the city's parks department, begins in 1992.

The renovation projects are broken into two phases because the East Bay Regional Park District is selling the bonds over five years.

The bond brings in $225 million to be split between the park district and each city in Contra Costa and Alameda counties.

avored by staff at Vista but faces some opposition from people in the Presentation High School neighborhood.

According to Robert Scannell, Peralta's chancellor, the district will have to make up its mind within the next month if it is to have a functioning headquarters when the new school year starts at the end of August.

Scannell said the Presentation site is still under "intense consideration." But he pointed out some of the unanticipated difficulties that make the spot less appealing.

When originally proposed, the cost of leasing the Milvia space seemed comparable with Presentation's price. But the district later learned that the Presentation lease would not cover expenses included at the other site, such as heating, cleaning and electricity, Scannell said.

The district would also have to pay for installing a new phone system at Presentation.

Another obstacle in the choice is a zoning change approval from the City of Berkeley. If the zoning process takes too long, Vista would face the start of school in the fall with no place to register students.

While an expanded Milvia site might be cheaper, it has at least one major difficulty. Under state law, the district would have to earthquake-proof the building. The district is currently negotiating with the building's owners as to who will pay the remodeling costs.

Scannell said Vista needs additional spaces for offices and classrooms. Though most classes are conducted at community locations, the headquarters needs space for computer and language laboratory courses that use bulky equipment.

In other action, the council approved a recommendation by Salomon to develop a broader city policy manual that will expand on the existing eight-page procedures manual. "There's no one place where the policies of the city are collected," Salomon said.

More simple than the city code, the new manual will serve as an easy reference guide for new hires and current city employees to quickly find answers to city questions.

President Kay Rabin.

"We see the urgency of the city, but it's difficult for us; we're not exactly sure how things are going to come down the track."

She said the district's Facilities Study Committee, whose work was also reported on at the meeting, "has to look at all the possibilities" of how the district will use its available space, including the current library site, to meet future needs.

Boardmember Sally Outis agreed. "We have different considerations than the city does," she said, and "the city is now proposing major modifications to the lease, not minor."

Councilmember Thelma Rubin said the school board's reasoning is "completely, totally beyond me." She said modifying the lease on the library to allow alternative uses of the site would benefit the school district in the long run.

Superintendent J. Dale Hudson backed up school board members' statements that the district has to consider a number of issues before it can agree to change the city's lease.

"Not by any stretch of the imagination are we dragging our heels," he said. "We need to look at the Solano Avenue site in the context of all the district's properties."

Hudson said the district is still figuring out how it will accommodate an additional four classes next fall. "Right now we're concerned about classrooms for young children."

At the meeting, officials also disagreed on exactly what proposals and counterproposals on modifying the lease had been made in the past.

"I think we would do better to generate more light and less heat," Kruse said as the discussion came to a close.

The two groups tentatively agreed to set up a school board/City Council committee that would meet more frequently to discuss issues of mutual interest to the city and school district.

Also discussed at the joint meeting were:

- Plans for a followup in early May to the disaster preparedness drill held last year;
- The status of Santa Fe Pacific Realty Corp.'s application to develop the Albany waterfront. A new, draft environmental impact report on which the public will have 45 days to make written comments will be published in about a month;
- A nearly completed survey on child care in Albany that will soon be the basis of a report to the City Council and school board.

Richmond man caught in postal theft crackdown

RICHMOND — A Richmond man was caught recently attempting to steal a battery from a postal vehicle parked at the Richmond Main Post Office.

Chester L. Celestine, 39, was apprehended by postal inspectors who had been staking out the parking lot following the theft of approximately 45 batteries since January.

Celestine is charged with burglary, auto tampering, trespassing and possession of burglary tools.

All postal batteries are prominently marked as postal service property. Anyone having information regarding the sale or use of the stolen postal batteries should call Postal Inspector Steven Emery at 636-2600.

Judge says drug cases clog courts

Contra Costa County Supervisor Tom Powers says the presiding judge of the county Superior Court wrote to commend supervisors for proposing a tax to fight drugs, but warned him courts will be unable to handle more drug arrests.

Judge Edward Merrill wrote Powers that "Drug cases are the prime reason our court case structure has come almost to a breaking point." Merrill warned that other criminal cases might have to be dismissed if drug enforcement efforts are stepped up.

Powers last week asked the Board of Supervisors to refer the judge's comments to the Finance Committee, which is helping to draft an initiative asking the voters to approve a new tax for anti-drug programs.

Powers said the committee should develop a balanced proposal for the drug tax funds that would include more money for court operations and law enforcement as well as drug treatment and prevention programs.

The supervisors unanimously passed Supervisor Sunne Wright McPeak's motion to draft the drug tax initiative March 14.

Court throws out taxpayers' lawsuit

The state Supreme Court last week declined to review a lower court ruling allowing some Contra Costa County taxpayers to proceed with a suit challenging a hospital district's plan to pay a former administrator $95,000 a year for life.

The high court without comment let stand a January decision by the state Court of Appeal that a contested contract with the Mount Diablo Hospital District and former chief executive officer Riley Green must be settled in Contra Costa County Superior Court.

Green had sought to settle the contract dispute through enforcement of an arbitration clause in the contract. Richard Norris, an attorney representing the hospital district has maintained the contract was induced by fraud, is illegal and is unenforceable.

The terms of the agreement between Green and the district include an $822,000 trust fund that would pay Green $95,000 a year for life and after his death would pay his wife Joyce $47,500 a year for life. It also included medical and life insurance, 14 years of retirement credit for 10 years of service, and binding arbitration of all disputes.

called a meeting with two other managers, a janitorial contractor and an agent posing as a representative of the contractor "to find out what was going on." Prosecutor Ben Burch told the jury that the alleged scene of Simas accepting the $2,000 in a restaurant parking lot on Jan. 14 was secretly recorded on a videotape that he plans to show in court.

He also said the purpose of the lunch meeting the next day was to resolve Simas's questions about how that $2,000 and another $2,000 in alleged padding of the contract was to be split up among Simas, fellow maintenance manager Frank Gomez and the contractors.

Simas is accused of conspiring with Gomez from November 1987 to February 1987 to solicit bribes. Gomez, 55, of Martinez, is judged mentally incompetent to stand trial last month and is undergoing tests in a federal mental hospital to determine whether he can ever be competent. He has been charged with 25 counts of receiving bribes, mail fraud and income tax evasion.

Burch, as assistant U.S. attorney, told the jury that Gomez suggested to undercover agents Randall Jannett and James November 1986 that Simas might be interested in joining an ongoing kickback scheme.

Police Report

ALBANY — The following is a partial account of crimes or incidents that occurred recently, according to police records.

- Police arrested an Adams Street man for drunk driving April 2 after he was spotted trying to drive a 1986 Hyundai Excel with three tires missing. According to a report, the 34-year-old was on Hoffman headed for I-80 when he was stopped.

- A Fairfield man reported seeing someone using a screwdriver to pry open a newspaper rack on Solano Avenue April 1. The subject removed coins from a tray and left in a 1984 Mazda, license no. 2U07708.

- Police checked out a Ford parked behind a building on Eastshore Highway April 1. The car was occupied by a Cornell Avenue man and a 29-year-old female "transient." The woman, who wore a lavender jacket and pink shorts, told officers the man was just giving her a ride to a friend's house.

- An Albany restaurant got a bomb threat Saturday night. Police received a call from a man with a "heavy Iranian accent" who said: "There is a bomb under the stage at the Casablanca Bar. You'd better believe it." Police checked out the restaurant and found no evidence of a bomb, according to the report.

- On April 1 a caller reported a suspicious person on Kains Avenue. Police contacted a 72-year-old man from Flint, Mich. He appeared to be confused, according to the report, and believed he was still in Flint. The man was taken to the police station until a temporary shelter in Berkeley could be found.

- Three men from San Pablo who planned to throw eggs at U.C. Berkeley demonstrators ended up in a battle with a Berkeley man whose car narrowly escaped getting hit.

The drivers of both cars got into an argument which continued into Albany. One of the men from San Pablo ended up kicking the Berkeley man's car and smashing its windshield.

The victim got the suspect's license number and reported it to police. When contacted, the San Pablo man said he was acting in self-defense against aggressive driving.

- Police responded to a call about a man dragging a young girl into a car in the Albany Cinema parking lot. He told officers he was punishing his daughter for kicking the tax man. The father was in the car waiting for his wife to come out of H&R Block.

- Vista School reported March 30 that someone had put uncooked spaghetti in the locks of 11 classrooms.

- A San Pablo woman reported March 28 that a man 30 or 40 years old tried to lure her 13-year-old son into the men's room at the Albany Bowl for sexual activity.

- A girl who hid her boyfriend on the roof March 28 was discovered when her mother called police to report a strange man in white pants on her roof. The daughter admitted to police that she was afraid her boyfriend, who had sneaked into the house, was making too much noise.

- A 51-year-old Oakland man came to the police station making some strange claims. He said unknown cult members were harassing him by painting a satan on his garage door, rattling chains outside his window, shooting at his car on the freeway, and placing a tracking device on his car so they could follow him.

El Cerrito library celebrates week with contest

EL CERRITO — Across the nation Americans will salute one of their favorite institutions, libraries, by observing National Library Week, April 9 to 15.

To celebrate the event the El Cerrito Library plans a poster contest for children in the third grade and up. Contestants should call the library at 526-7512 to find out about the special rules.

The El Cerrito Branch of the Contra Costa County Library system is at 6510 Stockton Ave. Hours are Monday and Thursday noon to 8 p.m.; Tuesday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday and Saturday 1 to 5 p.m.

The City of Albany hosted an appreciation dinner Monday for the city's commissioners and committee members. Ed McManus brought his now-familiar date, 10-month daughter Katie. Other celebrants included Lei Hogg (left to right), Tony Caine, Planning Director Claudia Coppola and City Attorney Robert Zweben.

Syphilis cases prompt county to declare emergency

Bay City News

The Alameda County Board of Supervisors last week declared a public health emergency because of a dramatic increase in the incidence of congenital syphilis linked to women drug users and prostitutes.

The supervisors authorized the county's Health Care Services Agency to seek a $60,000 grant from the state to establish a program to diagnose and treat pregnant substance abusers immediately in hospital emergency rooms, pregnancy testing clinics and vans that provide services to the homeless.

Such a program would also immediately identify and treat infants with congenital syphilis.

Dr. Robert Benjamin, head of the county's communicable diseases division, said a public health emergency is being declared because "We're fighting a losing battle against syphilis here." He said the number of congenital syphilis cases in Alameda County has risen astronomically in the last three years, from one case in 1986 to nine cases in 1987 and 28 cases in 1988.

Of the 28 cases last year, five resulted in the deaths of infants, he said.

Those who survived suffer from bone abnormalities, saddle-shaped noses, peg-like teeth, damaged shins and other problems, Benjamin said.

"This is not something innocuous," he said.

Benjamin said congenital syphilis is "eminently preventable and treatable" but early diagnosis and intervention is crucial. "If we can identify and treat the first trimester of pregnancy, we can treat both the mother and the fetus," he said.

He said the problem is that the 28 mothers who had with congenital syphilis last year 85 percent had no prenatal care.

"If they have adequate prenatal care they can be cured for syphilis," he said.

Cerrito Gauchos 'eased their way into the finals'

Journal — Mark Koehler

Cougars, Gauchos each make tourney finals

By Don August

The Journal

While both schools took a break from their regular schedule for the week of spring break, the Albany and El Cerrito varsity baseball teams took to the road for some tournament action.

Not only did they find themselves playing in the same tournament, they happened to meet up in the championship game, just a week after the two teams met in a non-league match up. While they both earned a trip to the finals, they did so in pretty much opposite ways. While the Albany Cougars needed last inning heroics to continue, the Gauchos eased their way into the finals.

For Albany it was tough as their first win came against Armijo of Fairfield. Even though the Cougars were 5-4 winners, they needed every at bat they could get.

Albany took a 3-1 lead in the second on a Breet Mueller rbi single and Ian Atkinson's sacrifice fly. Fairfield came back to take a 4-3 lead with Albany coming to bat in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Eric Flenoid began it with a single and after he stole second he went to third on an error and scored on a wild pitch to tie the game. Walks to Fields Nelson and Paul Rago left Mike Kostainsek at third as the winning run. (He reached on an error.)

Again Mueller came to bat and this time he hit a roller back to the mound. The pitcher threw a one hopper to the catcher who, trying to come up with the ball, dropped it when Kostainsek crashed into him, giving the Cougars the victory.

With that they next played the host team, Redwood High, and took control early. They jumped out to a 7-4 lead and held it throughout behind the pitching of Atkinson. When Mapes relieved him, the game got close. Mapes pitched through the sixth with no problems but in the seventh he walked the first three batters and then gave up back to back singles, making the score 7-6 and runners on second and third, but with the winning run on base, Mapes got two fly ball outs to save the win.

That win put them in the finals where they met up with neighboring rival, El Cerrito.

Meanwhile El Cerrito was getting strong pitching to make their way through the tournament. First, they defeated Tamalpais 2-1 behind winning pitcher Todd Jackson. D'Vour Thurston doubled in the winning run in the second inning and Jackson did the rest by striking 10 and walking only two while allowing only three hits.

In game two the Gauchos easily downed Piner, 11-4. Again pitching was a factor, with John Patton throwing a four hitter. He got offensive help from Sam Burnstein, three hits, two rbi and Kurt Hunt two hits, one rbi.

The two teams were set for another match up, this one for the Redwood Tournament Championship.

Albany pitchers Josh Alpert, Ian Atkinson and Eric Mapes teamed up to keep the Gauchos scoreless through seven, however, so did the Gauchos group of Nate Brown, Mike Prelock and Todd Jackson. The game went into the ninth inning scoreless when El Cerrito broke through against Mapes.

Alye Hayes singled and stole second and scored on a single by Will Petzel. With the deadlock broken, Sam Taylor put on the killing blow by blasting a two run homer to give El Cerrito the championship.

With the tournament over, both teams get back to league action this week. While the Cougars put their 2-0 league record up against St. Mary's (home game on Friday) the Gauchos battle Clayton Valley today at Cerrito Vista. The Gauchos are currently 10-2 overall and ranked first in the Tribune coaches' poll.

The Albany Little League's major division is off and running, and if last Saturday is any indication of what's to come, we are in for an exciting year.

This season began like last year's ended — with the Cardinals and Dodgers doing battle — and, like last year's championship game, it was a wild one. Unlike last year, however, the Dodgers came out on top, 9-7.

Behind the pitching of Tom

Beckwith, the Dodgers jumped out to the lead, and didn't look back until the very end, when they held off a furious Cardinal rally.

After a two-run first inning, the Dodgers put four more on the board in the third. Nathan Gathegi's RBI double, and RBI singles by Beckwith, Kyl Fleming and Davie Greene helped score the runs off losing pitcher Richard Szwaneck. Beckwith gave way to Colin Sillers in the fourth and the Dodgers lead held steady at 9-3 heading into the final inning, when the Cards made it fun.

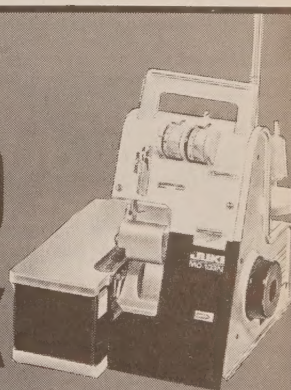

Micha Arnon's single, followed by Szwaneck's triple, got the Cards going. Tatum Tapscott then singled in Szwaneck, and a few walks later the score stood at 9-7.

Sillers was relieved by Gathegi, who got the Cards out with no further damage, and the Dodgers were the first team to win again in the brand new season.

Tom Beckwith was the hitting star of the day, going 3-for-3, with a single, double and triple and four RBIs. Kyl Fleming went 12-for-3 while David Kotylar,

Joan Combs Nelson plays the Queen; Robert Wood the Scientist in Masquers of Point Richmond's 'Under The Sycamore Tree'

Acting fine, but 'Sycamore' script should be fumigated

Stage

Under the Sycamore Tree runs weekends through May 6 with matinees on April 9, 16 and 30.

By Phyllis Lyon
The Journal

There were few bugs in production or performance last Friday night when the Masquers of Point Richmond opened a five-week run of Under The Sycamore Tree, a play that takes an ant's eye view of human nature and history, giving sluggards a chance to consider her ways and be wise.

The play, which doesn't get many big belly laughs because of its creaky script, tells of a colony of black ants, under the sycamore tree, in the middle of an underground cultural revolution. The Scientist ant, imitating his gods — human beings — has introduced not only radio, telephone, hygiene and birth control, but also created the ultimate weapon to annihilate the heap's enemies: DDT.

The army ants and worker caste are ruled with arbitrary flair by a vain Queen, seen on stage as the curtain rises laying eggs which are dutifully totted up on a calculator by the Chief Statistician ant.

With the advantage of toxic superiority, the ants proceed on through interhill diplomacy, love, marriage and a summit meeting in the Rose Garden to the play's sentimental conclusion.

The players give no-fault performances, although a lighter touch could have helped this farce seem less like melodrama.

Joan Combs Nelson, a Masquers veteran, is elegant as the imperious queen who crumples into motherhood after she finds love and marries the Scientist.

Robert Wood, surely best remembered locally for his near-perfect Tony in the company's Most Happy Fella, plays the centerpiece role of the Scientist with spirit, vigor and undertones of Frank Morgan as the Wizard of Oz. He is the ant without feelers, which may have some scientific significance.

The Girl ant, who is socially upgraded from worker to private secretary, is played with a charming comic sense by Sarah Irvin. Her prearranged mate is handsome Roy Goodman.

Others in the cast are Henry Bers who blusters effectively as the General, George W. Adams, Jr., as the backward-stepping, conservative statistician, Mark Kramer as the enemy Brown Ant and Linda Kramer as the Chief Worker Ant.

Zura Young, a fourth grader at the Mira Vista School in El Cerrito, is among six young student actors in the Masquers youth acting classes who play Worker ants.

While some plays grow dated yet keep their power to capture an audience, other just get stale. Under the Sycamore Tree was written in 1952 and it shows. The bug jokes ("Six of my feet are killing me," says the Queen) have stayed pretty funny but topical references to 1952 television commercials, for instance, are lost.

The satiric bites and stings into solid 1989 flesh don't hurt much. Now that we've learned to live with the bomb, the political and military humor has little power to evoke nervous laughter. The play's mixed message stems from the changed times.

The play is a solo effort by Samuel Spewack who, as he teams with his wife, Bella, is known for the enduring musical Kiss Me, Kate and Boy Girl.

The domestic mania of the notwithstanding, my theory is that if Sam had stuck with his collaborator on this one, the ant monarch wouldn't have peddled from queen to housewife quickly, but that's another story. Oddly, the Masquers program doesn't mention the play's

The audience of rowdy youngsters, who all appear to be acquainted, heartily applaud the throne room set. Well, but the great earth-toned contrast to the human world, contrasted rear, contrasts sharply with steel-blue interior walls, suggesting an oil tanker below more that a dank, fungused hole in the ground as spruced by insects.

The Masquers, who have been putting on plays in Point Richmond for 30 increasingly successful years, purchased theater just down the street, the Hotel Mac five years ago. Plays are chosen for production by a committee of the board directors from presentations made by aspiring directors. They hold open auditions for actors.

As a memento of an interesting evening in the theater, you can buy a large or small ant in the lobby after the performance. You take the farm, mail the ants. Proceeds from farm sales benefit the Mac mortgage fund.

Eclectic offerings at Albany Adult

Cooking, business, parenting, senior classes for spring

ALBANY — Albany Adult School is offering a variety of spring daytime and evening classes beginning in April. For information or registration call 526-6811.

How to Pay for College and Receive Financial Aid

The workshop is designed to assist the middle income family. Topics include:

- Crisis planning techniques - what to do if you have a college-bound junior or senior and no idea how to pay for it.
- Developing long term savings programs that take financial aid eligibility into consideration.
- How to make sure to get a fair share of financial aid.
- Creating a "do-it-yourself" scholarship out of tax dollars.
- Why choosing the correct college is important in maximizing financial aid.
- Special problems of single parents, whether divorced, separated or widowed.

Each family will receive its own computerized analysis showing where it fits into the financial aid structure. Family and student are encouraged to attend a follow-up counseling session at no additional charge. Session A convenes on April 13 and Session B on April 26 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Albany High School.

Tuition is $35 per family; pre-registration is required.

What's Cooking?

Gourmet dinners features dinners from around the world. A complete gourmet meal with soup or salad, main dish and a side dish or dessert will be prepared each evening. Dinners will be French, Japanese, Thai, Mexican and Italian. The session meets five Wednesdays starting April 26 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuition is $30.

Low Calorie Chinese Cooking will explore ancient Chinese cooking techniques requiring little or no oil. Students will discuss the Chinese philosophy of eating well-balanced and nutritious meals. The session meets three Wednesdays starting April 5 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuition is $20.

More Wonderful Thai Cooking will introduce students to exotic Thai cuisine. The one-day mini-course will meet on April 15 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuition is $20.

Pre-registration is required at the day office, 601 San Gabriel Ave., the evening office, 603 Key Route Blvd., Tuesday and Thursday nights only, or by mail.

Classes for Older Adults

Education has traditionally been viewed as a young person's prerogative. Today we live in a society that requires a constant renewal of individual knowledge.

Education is now recognized as an essential, life-long process. Accordingly, the Albany Adult School is presenting six spring courses for older adults starting the week of April 3.

The following courses will meet at the Albany Senior Center, 845 Masonic Ave.

Botanical drawing starts April 6, 9:30 a.m. to noon; Humanities studies starts April 4, 10 a.m. to noon; Mature Driver Improvement starts April 7 for four weeks, 10 a.m. to noon and World Cultures and Countries: Today's World starts April 5, 10 a.m. to noon.

Wills, Trusts, Death Tax will meet at Albany High, Room 113, starting April 4 for five weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. You Are Unique will meet at the MacGregor School starting April 6 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Business Courses

A good education is the key to a rewarding career in the ever-more competitive job market. The adults school has scheduled many evening and Saturday business courses.

This spring courses include Beginning Accounting, Career Clinic: Do What You Love, The Money Will Follow, How To Manage Your Boss and Which Career Is Right For You?, Computer Applications, Computer Literacy, Investment Basics for Women, Investments: Conservation Alternatives and Beginning and Intermediate Typing. Tuition ranges from $10 to $35.

For information about registration and meeting times call 526-6811.

Me, Myself & I

The way we think and feel about ourselves can serve as a firm foundation for success and satisfaction or it can undermine our work, our relationships and everything we do.

In this two-session workshop participants will come to better understand their own view of themselves and acquire tools to improve self-esteem.

The workshop will convene April 8 and 15 from 9 a.m. to noon at the MacGregor School.

Pre-registration is recommended. Tuition is $13.

The workshop will be given by Carol Ginzburg, licensed marriage, family and child counselor, who has a psychotherapy practice in Berkeley and is assistant dean of students at Holy Names College.

Parenting Classes

The adult school offers a range of parenting courses this spring. Dr. Peter Haiman will teach his course on Parenting Preschoolers. This class will convene for three weeks on Thursday evenings starting April 6. Tuition is $14.

Childbirth Education classes will meet on Wednesdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Albany High.

Tuition is $28 per couple. Pre-registration is required.

Business Scene

The level of excitement and anticipation was ebbing upward as the 11 p.m. showtime approached at the new KIMBALL'S EAST jazz club last Wednesday night. Appearing in his first west coast acoustic piano performance since 1974 was Herbie Hancock and his trio and opening the set was the master of the vibraphone, Bobby Hutcherson and his quartet.

After a five minute climb up the stairs past the waiting buzzing crowd and into the will call ticket area, I knew this was going to be an evening to remember. The excitement was infectious and only grew as we saw the 8:30 p.m. crowd leaving.

The only comments I could hear above the crowd noise were in the superlative — "Herbie is great and acoustic" — "Hutch has the touch" — "I can be here at least three times a month, this is serious jazz in a serious club."

Having been at the club a few days earlier with construction still in progress I was impressed with the finished product, especially at this point with the lighting and seating.

There are no columns in Kimball's East; you can see the stage clearly from anywhere in the house. The 8,500-square-foot facility has seating for 375 to 400 people and the semicircular stage and seating give a feeling of small club intimacy. The stage lighting moves through purple and green to a very warm orange background. The nine foot Steinway grand piano, selected by jazz great Tommy Flanagan for the club, shimmers in the changing light and at times appears to be a giant black music box.

Kimball's East is the vision of Jane and Kimball Allen, who are also responsible for San Francisco's leading jazz club, Kimball's, on Grove Street near Symphony Hall.

Kimball Allen is a man who likes to build things and in his 50 years at various projects he has been responsible for the first ever coin operated laundry facilities; an extremely successful chain of health food stores, Real Foods, Co.; Kimball's; and now what appears to be the best new thing in jazz in the East Bay. His design for the interior space of the club was done by driving a single 10 penny nail into the floor at what now is the rear of the stage, attaching a length of string to that nail and drawing the arc of the stage and all the circular seating areas.

Sometimes the simplest tools are the greatest facilitators of vision, especially in this case where every seat on every tier is the best seat in the house.

The Bobby Hutcherson Quartet with Smith Dobson on piano, Jeff Chambers on bass and drummer Eddie Marshall opened the 11:00 p.m. set with the smooth sounds that come from a master of the vibraphone.

Hutcherson played with calm elegance, bending rhythms and melodies at will, racing up the scale to a solo and them giving over to Dobson and Chambers the melody only to step up to the vibes again and turn another way musically.

After Hutcherson's opening set there was a short intermission that most people didn't move for, but the buzz in the club was about Herbie Hancock going acoustical on a nine foot Steinway grand.

Dressed in black and very at ease, Hancock opened the set with Wayne Shorter's composition "Footprints," a melodic, up-tempo 12-minute piece. To say that Hancock, Buster Williams on bass and Al Foster on drums were in tune would be a huge understatement.

These musicians play with a seventh sense of anticipation, execution and flow. Hancock plays the piano for himself and the audience — his precise phrasing and tempo are not unlike a painter with unlimited canvas who always discovers new color and texture.

During the set we were all treated to a piano solo by Hancock that can only be described as a jazz dream. With tempo movement, time changes, melody shifts and a touch so light on the keys that at times the music sounded like the private musings of a Pharaoh musician.

In addition to this wonderful music Kimball's East has retained Emeryville's Dave Hoffman of Hoffman Gallery to present a series of exhibitions of contemporary artwork in its new exhibit using Emeryville artists as subjects.

Kimball's East is serving wines and has a full bar. Also will be serving, under the direction of chef Robert Snacks, light meals and fresh trees as fresh and exciting musical presentations. Weeks and months to come appearing at Kimball's East Ahmad Jamal (April 5, 9), Dizzy Gillespie (April 15) and Flora Purvis (April 15).

tion space, Kimball's Gallery.

The gallery features the work of five Emeryville artists as a tribute to the enormous artistic presence in Emeryville. On display will be paintings by surrealist Cynthia Duval, the water-colors of sculptor/painter Robert Shields and drawings by Emeryville Artist' Cooperative co-founder Michael Murphy.

Two Emeryville based photographers will be shown, Cay Lang and Kim Harrington, who has created a series of photographs

Airto (April 26 through 28) and a special production of Freddie Hubbard and Henderson is scheduled through 7. Chuck La Kimball's East booking is intent on presenting the jazz musicians in the most appropriate, comfortable, supportive atmosphere possible. Kimball's East is located 5800 Shellmound Ave. in Emery Bay Marketplace, Powell Street exit. For information and tickets phone 681-6811.

El Cerrito Chamber

By Del Wisenor

Plaza plans crafts show

This column was mistakenly placed under the "Albany Chamber" heading last week. It is reprinted here in its entirety.

Local artists and craftspeople are invited to participate in the Plaza's annual Fine Arts and Crafts Show June 16, 17 and 18. Applications are available now in the Plaza Management Office, Muzzan Suite 304, or by calling 524-6535.

The annual Wine Festival, co-sponsored by the El Cerrito Chamber, El Cerrito Plaza and the Women's Club of El Cerrito, will be held June 17, on the mall, in conjunction with the arts and crafts show. More information soon.

Mixing it up

The March 15 Chamber Mixer at El Cerrito Plaza Travel was one of our more successful social events, with around 50 in attendance. A fine time with great networking, great refreshments and great hosts. Thanks to all at El Cerrito Plaza Travel, located at 220 El Cerrito Plaza.

Doreen Serb of the West County Times won the door prize. Other prizes went to Dolph Blankus, MacFarlane's Candies; Mike Bernhardt, SB Communications; and Pat O'Keeffe, director of the Redevelopment Agency.

The Chamber especially appreciates Pat's and Doreen's, along with many from the West County Times, faithful attendance at our lunch meetings and mixers. We encourage all members to support these events when they are able. That's what it's all about, members supporting members whenever possible.

Other events

Reservations are going fast for our May 10 Day at the Races, which was announced at the February lunch meeting by Ed Manepa, event chair. Call staff at 527-5333 if you are interested.

Associate chamber member American Cancer Society is presenting a Spring Fling with Pat Benke and the Glenn Miller Band from 2 to 6 p.m. on April 14 at the Richmond Municipal Auditorium.

Donations are $15 or $50 for a reserved table for 10 on the dance floor and unreserved balcony seating is $12 per ticket.

Tickets are available at the ACS office in El Cerrito at 10290 San Pablo Ave. or by calling staff at 525-6801 and in Walnut Creek at the ACS office at 1250 Springbrook Rd., 934-7640.

The development committee met March 20 in the office of Pat O'Keeffe with Chairman Marv Collins. Committee members were Barbachano, Blair Burton, Larry Kiefer and I discussed current issues.

The chamber will continue to work with and support the Redevelopment agency and agency director.

Small business feedback

State legislation now under consideration requires employers with 25 or more employees (AB 17-Moore) or 15 or more employees (SB 257-Torres) to provide protected parental leaves. Assembly Bill 77 extends the mandate to elder care and requires the employer to allow up to four months of unpaid, job-protected leave. Employers can require employees to pay the cost of continuing benefits.

Senate Bill 257 requires employers to continue payments

Supervisors set up dump rate review

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors has set up a rate review program that will require the Acme Fill Corp. to submit its disposal rates at the new garbage transfer station in Martinez for approval by the supervisors.

Acme has been criticized recently for an 87 percent increase in the rate it charges garbage haulers to dump at the Acme landfill in Martinez. When the landfill reaches capacity and by this year, the company's transfer station will accept trash for consolidation and shipment to other dumps.

The county has no control over Acme landfill but reserves the right to review rates at the transfer station as a condition for granting the station a land use permit.

In a recent 4-0 vote with Supervisor Robert Schroder abstaining, the board voted to exercise its right to set up the rate review program.

Danny Gross, Colin Sillers, David Greene and Gathegi each got their first hits of the season.

For the Cards, Tapscott went 2-4. Arnon had two hits and Jeff Garbarini and Szwaneke both had triples.

Next up were the Pirates and Cubs, a see-saw affair where the teams dodged rain drops and took turns putting up big numbers. The Cubs, however, got the best of it, outscoring the Pirates 16-9.

The Pirates started early by banging the Cubs for three runs in the bottom of the first inning. The Cubs then took their turn and scored six in their half of the second. Big hits of the inning were by Arnon Baines and Sam Nickelson.

Inning number three saw the Pirates strike back, scoring six, with the key hit by Ilan Beesen — triple with the bases loaded. That put the Pirates ahead 9-7, but only for a while.

The Cubs scored two in the fourth and put up five more in the fifth. Benj Myers took his turn at hitting heroics in the fifth, as he belted a bases-loaded triple of his own. From there, the Cubs cruised to a 16-9 win.

Gabe Serpe, Jon Sanger and Edward Preisler combined to shut the Pirates down while their mates did the damage offensively.

For the Cubs, Aaron Baines led the way with three hits, while Sam Nickelson, Gabe Serpe and Muiers each had two hits. Burlington Germany, Priesler, and Brandon Smith had a hit apiece.

Even in defeat, the Pirates had some stars as well. Ilan Beesen went 3-for-4 with two singles and a triple. Gavin Claiborne had two doubles, Jeff McCulloch had a pair of singles, and Christian Thede, Paul Cook and Charlie Smith rounded out the hit brigade.

That left only the Giants and Braves to do battle. The Giants used timely hitting and good relief pitching to beat the stubborn Braves 7-5.

Jason Caredio led off with a single, moved to second on Dominic Palazolo's single, and scored on an errant pickoff throw to get the Braves a 1-0 lead. The Giants got that run back in the bottom of the first and in the second took the lead for good.

After a walk to Jeff Treney, Joseph Cross hit a triple down the line in right, to score the Giants' second run. Two walks and two outs later, the Giants had the bases loaded, and a one-strike count to their cleanup hitter Roshan Jain cleaned the bases with a line drive into the gap in left center field.

The Braves began to chip away at the lead. Chase Choate's sacrifice fly to center scored one third-inning run, and an error let in another to make the score 6-3. While the Giants were leaving the bases loaded in the third and fourth innings, the Braves continued to come closer.

In the fifth, three walks, a catcher's interference and an error helped the Braves close to within 6-5.

Giant relief ace Kitamba Douglas, after surviving a rocky fifth inning, struck out two in the sixth to nail down the win.

The 1989 Montero V-6 is well-prepared to take on a variety of assignments.

Ford's California sales up from last year

Northern California Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers chalked up a strong start for 1989 — setting the January pace with a 164 percent increase in sales of the Lincoln Continental.

Mercury Topaz, registering a 46 percent increase over last January, was another great performer, according to B. C. Sauer, Lincoln-Mercury Division's Oakland district sales manager.

"The Ford Probe was a big achiever for Ford dealers," said R. O. Davis, Ford Division's San Jose district sales manager. He reported that sales of the full sized Bronco utility truck were up 27 percent during January.

Mr. Davis also noted that F-Series pickup truck sales were up over 12 percent.

Lincoln-Mercury dealers sold 2,533 cars in January, a nearly 30 percent increase over January 1988.

Sales of the traditional classic, the Lincoln Town Car — with its boulevard ride, comfort and luxury features — tallied up strong sales in January: Dealers sold 40 percent more Town Cars this year than they did during the same period last January.

"The Scorpio, the fine handling, luxury sedan imported from Germany for selected Lincoln-Mercury dealers, also had a great January," said Sauer. He reported Scorpio sales up over 30 percent.

Mercury Tracer, designed for sophisticated, sensible driving, also showed solid growth — registering a 40 percent sales increase.

Montero fast, fun four-wheel drive

The automobile industry has sliced up the market into many new sectors over the last three years.

Practicality and fun are at the forefront of this change.

Mitsubishi has been one of those to innovate their product lines with new hyper-drive sports cars, mini-trucks, family sedans and four-wheel drives.

Their latest four-wheel drive Montero wagon is the first to combine the best features of a sports utility wagon into a complete package.

The '89 Montero wagon features two models: a three-door and a five-door. The five-door also comes with a V6 engine as standard. The new five-door wagon is the first in its class to offer two extra doors on a stretched wheelbase.

All the competition comes in a three-door configuration, although new stretch versions with five doors are forecast. Having driven several different versions over the past three years I was familiar with the Montero as an on-road and off-road vehicle.

I first drove the five-door in Arizona a few months ago. Mitsubishi was using it as a chase vehicle during the press preview of their stunning Eclipse sports coupe.

We were cruising along a two-lane desert road at about 60 mph when the road suddenly turned 90 degrees right and then immediately 90 degrees left without any sign posting. The Eclipse coupes ate it up, zapping around the turns like a slice of straight blacktop.

Between the ditches

Tagging along in the Montero I just followed suit. As I turned into the corner, I quickly discovered just how tight the turn was.

With an armful of wheel adjustment and plenty of throttle,

Auto Scene

the Montero leaned over heavily as I hauled it around the turn with a slight tail-out correction. It scrubbed off plenty of speed with some squealing of tires, but we stayed in our lane and maintained a good level of directional control through both turns.

My traveling companion, another motoring press scribe, sucked in and didn't breathe until we exited the second corner. He burst out with, "Whew, this thing does handle."

I guess I even surprised myself with that series of turns. The Montero, with its new, longer wheelbase and expansive suspension, acquitted itself surprisingly well at a relatively high speed. The Montero, after all, is not a sports car but a luxo-off-roader.

Mitsubishi has concentrated on getting the ride and handling up to scratch on both models. The five-door got a new 105 inch wheelbase, which is 14 inches longer than the three-door, a new wide rear axle, and both models got coil springs in the rear.

Changes help

The difference these changes have made to the Montero is significant. The longer wheelbase not only helps in the handling but gives the wagon a better ride by placing the wheels further apart. This has effectively eliminated much of the front to rear chop that the shorter three-door suffers from on evenly spaced concrete freeway surfaces.

The added wheelbase allows for four doors and a decent amount of rear leg room. The new style also offers better cargo space behind the rear seat, as they were able to move its position forward to open the cargo area out to 94 cubic feet.

The rear door is a swing out type, allowing access to the floor of the cargo area without having to reach over a folding gate. The driver's area offers a high seating position with a good view in all directions.

This is a great plus for shorter folks like my wife, who complains that many new vehicles sit the smaller driver too low and thus limit their all-round visibility.

The dash is simple with clear instrumentation. Mounted in the center is an inclinometer and a compass. The only demerit is the positioning of the stereo and heater controls, which, for my liking, are still too low in relationship to the driver for easy on-the-go operation.

This redesign offers improved passenger room, both front and rear, with a pair of adjustable bucket seats up front and folding rear seat for three. The front buckets also offers adjustable side bolstering for extra support and the dash has a wide grab handle for the passenger when entering and exiting tough off-road conditions.

The interior is finished in a seemingly tough velour fabric material, which is both warm and cool depending upon the prevailing weather.

The driver's seat is special to the Montero. It is sprung on a special air suspension base which allows up and down movement of the seat and its occupant over rough terrain. This system is "driver weight adjustable," and for anyone seriously going off-road, it is a great feature.

As a "go to the snow" vehicle, the Montero has a lot going for it as a complete package. The four-wheel drive system is a part time on-demand system for use only under variable traction situations.

Effortless FWD

Automatic locking hubs are standard but the vehicle must be stopped to engage or disengage the system. What this all means is that you don't have to get out and get under to keep moving up in the mountains. It's just the flick of the switch and the shuffle of a lever, and you're away in four-wheel drive.

Under the hood is a powerful 3 liter V6. It produces 143 horsepower with 168 pound of torque. This translates into quite a drivable package with its fuel injection and electronic engine management systems. On the go, it will happily cruise at 65 mph all day.

Up in the mountains it still performs happily but I found a little extra throttle work and downshifting was required with a full load on board. We were equipped with the four-speed automatic option, which functions fine and, coupled with the V6, returned around 18 miles to the gallon.

Externally, the Montero is an attractive package. The LS version that I had on test came with alloy wheels, a perfect orchid metallic paint color with a clear coat finish, blacked out window surrounds and a new style chrome boxed grille.

All round, I found the Montero up on both quality of workmanship and usability. The new, longer five-door wagon is definitely a plus and, with all its many standard features, from excellent stereo to automatic hubs, the Montero is well on the way to being a prime line for Mitsubishi.

With a price tag around the $20,000 marker, it is priced lower than many similarly equipped domestic competitors and well worth a drive if you are looking for a practical, comfortable vehicle that offers more than just a ride to the office and back.

Why Pay 6% to Sell Your Home?

The fact is, you don't have to. Unlike discount stock brokerages, where you pay less but get less, Realty Advocates reduces the commission but not the service. Our full service includes a free market analysis, Multiple Listing Service (MLS), Sunday open houses, special broker's tours, advertising, and much more. But in most cases, unlike our competition, Realty Advocates Charges Only 4% for Full Service.

We also offer two affordable flat-fee programs to assist For Sale By Owners and a unique Buyer's Broker program that buyers rave about. Call us for a copy of our informational brochure. You'll be glad to have a Realty Advocate on your side.
